WORLD DAY FOR MIGRANTS AND REFUGEES 2019

A Call to Action

By Ronnate Asirwatham

When Pope Francis declared September 29 as the World Day of Migrants and Refugees, he used the theme “it is not just about the migrants.” It seems curious that a day dedicated to reaffirming one’s commitment to celebrate and “welcome, protect, promote and integrate” the migrant should not be only about migrants.

In the U.S. and at Holy Trinity, a majority of us have a migrant story, whether recent or of a few generations past. I am an immigrant too. After being born in a war torn country and experiencing extreme personal trauma, I sought asylum in the United States in 2009. While working on the U.S. government’s immigration policies in the past two years, I have often felt excluded. Many faith traditions support migrants from the standpoint of “welcome the stranger.” But hearing those words, I would ask myself: “Would I always be ‘the stranger’?” When would I move from being “the stranger” in the U.S. to being “family”? If I became “family” would it mean I was no longer a “migrant,” a part of my identity that I am proud of?

Holy Trinity Time Capsule

Alley Closings

An October 22, 1917 order from the Commissioners of D.C. to “Holy Trinity Church, et al” decrees that on Square 1227 (the block in which our campus is located), alley closings would affect lots 83, 94, 84 and part of lot 78. Holy Trinity’s lot is now all encompassed under lot 95, but it most likely absorbed lots 78 and 83 sometime after 1917. The closing order states that the parish “agrees not to erect any structure on the part of alley closed to obtain access to the sewer constructed therein.”

Narrower streets and more difficult street parking in Georgetown encouraged more garages to be built in alleys. Priests were often among the first to have cars and garages to make house calls quicker and more convenient.

A major blow to alleys came in 1934 when Congress established the Alley Dwelling Authority (ADA)—today known as the DC Housing Authority—to eliminate all alley dwellings and to encourage economic redevelopment.

Opponents of alley closings argued that alley closings encouraged greater density and altered the historic character of neighborhoods. Unlike Southwest D.C. where alley enclaves were demolished under eminent domain, alleys in Northwest D.C. were turned into parking areas, art centers, architecture studios, cafes, coffee shops, and entertainment areas. Despite the loss of alleyways and alley buildings in residential neighborhoods over the course of the city’s history, many survive as viable functional and cultural spaces.

Welcome Sunday

New and current parishioners are invited to learn more about all that Holy Trinity has to offer. Pastoral Associate of Social Justice Ronnate Asirwatham, Coordinator of Youth Ministry Rebecca Hoesterey, and representative from Maria Madre and the Migrant Team will be present at the Welcome Table in McKenna Hall after the 9am & 11:30am Masses.

Living Our Mission: Accompany One Another in Christ

This week's column is written by Associate Pastor Rev. Pat Earl, S.J.

Reflections of a Returning Jesuit

When approached to write these reflections, I was asked to do basically two things. First, I was to talk about how I feel being back at Holy Trinity after ten years away. And then I was to compare that parish I left in 2009 with the parish I've returned to.

I must honestly tell you the memories I have of the parish I left in the summer of 2009 are much clearer to me than the impressions I now have of the parish I've returned to. I must say I find myself still returning to the Holy Trinity of 2019 and still re-learning what it means to be the Jesuit parish in the nation's capital at this time in our history. But what is absolutely clear to me is that the people of this parish are extraordinarily hospitable. I have been warmly welcomed back. For sure I know I have returned to a community of people who have open arms, warm hearts and gracious words.

It's always people who make up what our experiences will be. That's certainly true of our parish. And for me as a Jesuit that also applies to my Jesuit community. I have returned to a completely new Jesuit community. When I left back in 2009 to go to Charlotte, NC, there was a separate, autonomous Jesuit community attached to the parish. That has changed. Parish Jesuits now form part of the larger Georgetown Jesuit community. That larger community is made of university Jesuits, Jesuits doing fundraising for the Gregorian University in Rome, Jesuits from Africa doing graduate studies at the university, and then Jesuits doing various other ministries. So I am living in a much bigger, more varied Jesuit community. I find it really enriching.

We have begun using the church. It feels refreshed inside. I look forward to celebrating God's gracious goodness in our lives in that renewed space. Yet there is something lingering in contrast to our refreshed worship space. It's my questions and concern about what happened in minds and hearts as you learned about scandalous behavior of former Cardinal McCarrick and went through all the events leading to the resignation of Cardinal Wuerl. I was in Atlanta as all of this unfolded. Even at a distance it was ugly and upsetting. I can only imagine what it was like here in the center of the storm. It's a time for hope. And it must be "we" who hope and face our future together as a parish, as an archdiocese and as a church.

Finally, and obviously, I must conclude with words of thanks. Thank you for making me realize I have come back home.

Daily Mass Intentions

The parish community prays for all of the dead every day at Mass. However, we encourage parishioners to mention specific persons by name during the General Intercessions when invited to do so by the presider.

Pope Francis addresses this saying that this day is not only about accommodating everyone with a migrant story, but that inclusion must be at the very heart of our faith in action: "In every pastoral action we must always put the person in the center ... And this applies to all people, whose fundamental equality must be recognized."

Holy Trinity has ably put its faith into action accompanying and supporting migrants such as the Cheiko family and the Sevilla family. However, seeing widespread inhumanity in the immigration system today, the Jesuit Conference President and Provincial Superiors of the United States and Canada, have called us to action more emphatically by expanding our advocacy efforts.

"Advocacy for just policies is an integral component of living out a faith that does justice," they say in a letter to all Jesuit Parishes. Advocacy together with accompaniment allows us to recognize that we are all equal and all need Just systems. The Jesuits urge us to enhance our advocacy in order that "we may create the opportunity to build a more just society, a more united country and a more fraternal world." To create a world where we can say to each other "you are no longer strangers or sojourners, but you are fellow citizens with the holy ones and members of the household of God" (Ephesians 2:19).

Holy Trinity parishioners can heed the Jesuits' call to contact our political representatives by taking action. Visit www.trinity.org/social-justice/advocacy for more information. For more information on social justice at Holy Trinity or our migrant support work, please email me at rasirwatham@trinity.org or call (202) 903-2809.

Founder's Day Weekend

OCTOBER 5-6, 2019
CELEBRATING 225 YEARS

On Relics

A vivid memory of my Jesuit High School years in the 1950s was our veneration of the right arm of St. Francis Xavier, one of the founders of the Society of Jesus and its first missionary. Housed in a rectangular box with a glass window for viewing, bones of his forearm and a blackened hand became an indelible memory of my senior retreat. As we filed by the case to plant a kiss and murmur a prayer, we were asked to ponder the countless blessings the arm had bestowed on non-believers and the other priestly functions it had performed. Permanently housed in the Jesuit Church of the Gesù in Rome, the arm periodically resides in Jesuit churches around the world. Last year, it was displayed in Canada.

Holy Trinity parishioners who have experienced the five day immersion trip to the Jesuit-run Kino Border Initiative on the Arizona/Mexico border have come to understand relics from a unique perspective. One of the activities of those intense days is to hike along the trails of the high Sonoran Desert that migrants use to begin their daunting trek through the tangled flora to reunite with family members or encounter friendly circumstances for a new life. On our trek, as we spotted objects strewn about the mesquite groves and sacaton grass, we were encouraged to consider them, not as litter, but as the valued belongings of desperate persons, lost in the brambles as they were being tracked-down by the U.S. Border Patrol. Family pictures, a baby bottle, a rosary, an identity card, a tiny stuffed animal, objects easily observed as discarded trash, would be better understood as treasured possessions, unwillingly lost by fellow human beings, lost while in terrified flight; relics left for us to ponder their identities and their plight.

A compelling collection of these objects found on the Arizona migrant trails are being shipped to Holy Trinity for display during the parish's Founder's Day Celebration on October 6. They will be on display in Trinity Hall from 12-4pm. They will be available for participants to observe and handle. Each one holds the story of a man or woman like us, whose fate is unknowable but whose human situation can be imagined by respectful consideration of relics left behind.
