Flowers Blooming on the Train Tracks

By Rachael Brady and Margie Legowski

"Mica!" I (Rachael) shouted, out of breath from running around the tiny compound of Maria Madre, dodging chairs, hammocks and people. I was chasing a church employee's six-year-old son, who wears tennis shoes with holes in them. We were playing mica, or tag, after a long day of learning about Saint Oscar Romero.

Holy Trinity sends biannual delegations to Maria Madre de los Pobres, our sister parish San Salvador. Holy Trinity has maintained a relationship with Maria Madre since 1989. The parish had been created in 1984 in the barrio La Chacra for squatters who had fled the fighting of the civil war.

The kids' running and laughter snapped me out of my daze. To be perfectly honest, when I'd landed in El Salvador, I was tired from travel already. Just days before, I'd said goodbye to my great study abroad adventure and I was still processing what it meant to be in the U.S. again when I was whisked away to San Salvador.

Our current relationship with Maria Madre is one of solidarity, or accompaniment. Rather than travel to build something, we visit to begin and further our relationships with the parish leaders and parishioners. Our presence is a sign of our care for them, and we receive their care for us.

Playing tag with this little kid and watching the joy stretch across his face reminded me why I had decided to accept my sister's invitation to El Salvador: to learn,

Living Our Mission: Celebrate God's Love

By Rev. Paul Brian Campbell, S.J.

I am a huge fan of Andre Dubus II, the great American essayist and short story writer who died in 1999. My favorite work of his is the essay he wrote about making sandwiches for his daughters. He explains that he's divorced, in a wheelchair and has a very small kitchen which makes maneuvering quite difficult. Here's some of what he wrote:

“A sacrament is physical, and within it is God's love; as a sandwich is physical, and nutritious and pleasurable, and within it is love, if someone makes it for you and gives it to you with love; even harried or tired or impatient love, but with love's direction and concern, love's again and again wavering and distorted focus on goodness; then God's love too is in the sandwich...

“On Tuesdays when I make lunches for my girls, I focus on this: The sandwiches are sacraments. Not the miracle of transubstantiation, but certainly parallel with it, moving in the same direction. If I could give my children my body to eat, again and again without losing it, my body like the loaves and fishes going endlessly into mouths and stomachs, I would do it.

“And each motion is a sacrament, this holding of plastic bags, of knives, of bread, of cutting board, this pushing of the chair, this spreading of mustard on bread, this trimming of liverwurst, or ham. All sacraments, as putting the lunches into a zippered book bag is, and going down my six ramps to my car is.

“I drive on the highway, to the girls' town, to their school, and this is not simply a transition; it is my love moving by car from a place where my girls are not to a place where they are; even if I do not feel or acknowledge it, this is a sacrament. If I remember it, then I feel it too. Feeling it does not always mean that I am a happy man driving in traffic; it simply means that I know what I am doing in the presence of God.

“If I were much wiser, and much more patient, and had much greater concentration, I could sit in silence in my chair, look out my windows at a green tree and the blue sky, and know that breathing is a gift; that a breath is sufficient for the moment; and that breathing air is breathing God.”

I have read this essay numerous times and its depth and beauty hits me hard each time.

You access the entire essay through our link at www.trinity.org/dubus.

DAILY MASS INTENTIONS

The parish community prays for all of the dead every day at Mass. However, we encourage parishioners to mention specific persons by name during the General Intercessions when invited to do so by the presider.

Parishioners may also request that a specific person be remembered by name at a particular weekday Mass by calling or visiting the receptionist's desk in the Parish Center during normal office hours.

Names must be submitted one week in advance. Persons to be so remembered at weekday Masses this week are:

SERVE

Lenten Food Waste Fast

Did you know that one third of the food raised or prepared does not make it from farm/factory to fork? If food waste were a country, it would come in third after the United States and China in terms of impact on climate change.

Producing uneaten food squanders a whole host of resources—seeds, water, energy, land, fertilizer, hours of labor, financial capital—and generates greenhouse gases at every stage—including methane when organic matter lands in the global rubbish bin.

The food we waste is responsible for roughly 8% of global emissions. Our friends at Ignatian Solidarity Network have issued their third week challenge:

Before you shop this week, survey your kitchen to see what you already have, and use Meal Prep Mate at www.savethefood.com/meal-prep-mate to help you plan your meals.

Join the fast and learn more about what you can do at www.trinity.org/fast.

Upcoming Direct Service Opportunities

On April 18, parishioners of all ages are invited to help clean up Dumbarton Oaks Park, and on May 8-10, Holy Trinity is hosting a drive for the Greater DC Diaper Bank. You may learn more about these opportunities at www.trinity.org/social-justice.

Help Plan Our Parish-Wide Day of Service

At Holy Trinity, our faith and Ignatian tradition call us to build a more just world that upholds dignity, equality and access to social and economic opportunity for all—and once a year we try to do this together as a parish. We call it the Power of One. This year, we will celebrate and serve together June 6. We are working to create opportunities for service around the DC Metro area that day. If you would like to be part of the planning, please contact Ashley Klick at aklick@trinity.org.

Jesuit Parish Advocacy Day

On May 20, unite as people of faith inspired by Catholic Social Teaching and Ignatian Spirituality to call on Congress to enact humane migration policies in the US and beyond. Holy Trinity is hosting visitors on May 19 for Mass, dinner and advocacy prep. Please register to participate by March 18 at www.igsol.net/parish-advocacy. ## Flowers Blooming, cont. from page 1 to encounter, to notice everything, to be a part of the joy, of the sorrow, of the hope, of the despair, of the poverty, and of the wealth. At last, I let myself breathe it all in.

One of the key activities at Maria Madre is their apadrinamiento (sponsorship) program. Families at Holy Trinity and other parishes sponsor a child and become that child's Godparent. Funds go first for schooling for the children, then to formation and support for the family.

The funds also support a team of educators who meet regularly with the families. The godchildren participate in weekly age-appropriate formation. Monthly, a formation session is held stressing skills to strengthen familial bonds, where attendance is required by the child's caregiver.

As I walked along train tracks that smelled of rot and sewage and watched children play and smile in the dirt, in the make-shift shanty town homes. I let my heart break, I felt the tears that dared to spill and felt more privileged than ever. I've never worn shoes with holes in them.

While we were in La Chacra, the educators led a session on how to communicate well with one's child. Sitting with them through two sessions in two different sectors of the parish, we could see that the parents and grandparents truly engaged with the concepts presented. The team of educators were quite good at their work and had been well-trained themselves by the director of the program, Sr. Betty.

On my last day in El Salvador, as hopelessness sat like an unmovable rock in my stomach, I talked to one of the girls about her dreams. I remember the look on her face when she told me about her generation because she spoke to me like an adult, for a moment, she seemed older than me, she had lived more, experienced more. She talked about how smart her generation is and how they will work for change. And I believe her.

We did so much more in Maria Madre. The people were grateful to see us at their daily or weekend masses. We made home visits to a number of the Holy Trinity-sponsored children. We visited the parish school on Día de la Amistad (our Valentine's Day) when we were greeted by songs, piñatas, and pizza. We shared meals with the parish staff.

The girl reminded me that between those rusty tracks, thousands of flowers peered out. Flowers that painted the neighborhood with light. And although I am still dumbfounded at how they keep on blooming, on how the people can still crack jokes and smile and offer such hospitality and generosity, I think that maybe it is because hope and strength is a sort of wealth that is intangible.

The next visit to Maria Madre will be in July. Save the date to join us on April 22 from 6:30-8pm in the Parish Library to hear more about our trips. Contact Margie at margielegowski@gmail.com for information and to RSVP. All are welcome!•
