Improving Access To Holy Trinity's Sacramental Registers History Committee Creates Searchable Databases by Peter J. Albert

Holy Trinity's historical sacramental records include baptismal registers, marriage registers, and death and interment registers. Archived in the Booth Family Center for Special Collections at Georgetown University, they are digitized and available online for research. As the Holy Trinity History Committee continues exploring the story of the Black community that was such a vibrant part of our parish for so many years, we have begun creating searchable databases of the names of African American parishioners from the entries in these registers. They are posted on the parish website under the tab "Holy Trinity History," subtab "Access Historical Databases."

The handwritten sacramental registers, now faded and difficult to read, were compiled over the years by many different priests. The handwriting, spelling, and attention to detail in the entries varies widely. Most are in English; some are in Latin.

African Americans, enslaved and free, were often recorded only by their first names, and misspellings and other errors abound. The enslaved wife of free man David Thomas, for example, is listed in one place as Philis and in another as Phenissa; the family of Anne Marie Becraft appears in the registers as the Bicleffs. The race or status of parishioners was not always designated in the registers, so we may have inadvertently overlooked some African Americans, enslaved or free, in compiling our databases. We apologize for any errors or omissions that may have crept into our work.

Two 1807 entries from a Holy Trinity baptismal register

To facilitate research, the databases are posted in pairs, with the information in the first of each pair arranged chronologically, as it is found in the registers, and then, in the second, with the names arranged alphabetically. The first pair of databases, completed in January 2024, list marriages of Black parishioners at Holy Trinity between 1795 and 1869. It includes 620 names of those being married. The next databases, completed in March and

April, respectively, list Black baptisms in the parish from 1795 to 1805 (255 names of parents and children) and from 1805 to 1818 (over 600 names).

The sacramental registers suggest the outlines of stories of hundreds of African American families in the parish, stories that would otherwise be lost to history. The baptismal registers give us moment-in-time glimpses of family groups, including the names of the baptized Black children, their baptism dates and often their dates of birth, as well as their parents' names and the names of their godparents. The marriage registers include the names not only of the couple being married but also those of witnesses and other family members.

Together, Holy Trinity's sacramental registers enable us not only to name many early African American parishioners, both free and enslaved, but to identify the members of their families and begin to trace their stories through time.

Holy Trinity's searchable databases provide a priceless key to accessing the gold mine of information contained in our parish's sacramental registers. We welcome your help in making their availability known to individuals and organizations who share our interest in the lives of our Black parishioners.

EARTH DAY 2024: PLANET VS. PLASTICS

Plastic waste is a huge and growing problem. Only 9% of the 9 billion tons of plastic produced has been recycled. There is very little demand for the plastic you do recycle. 40% of all plastic is designed to be used once and tossed. Plastic doesn't decompose easily and can last 100s of years. The waste clogs landfills and waterways, and poses hazards to animals and fish life. It breaks up into ever smaller microplastics getting into our air and food chain with unknown health effects.

What you can do:

- Say NO to single-use plastic. Carry your own cups, bags, to-go containers, utensils and forget the straws.
- Say NO to bottled water and pop. Carry refillables.
- Choose more biodegradable/recyclable materials like glass, paper, cardboard and metal instead of plastic... and then recycle those items.
- Avoid products with excessive packaging, excessive plastic packaging and parts. If it leaves behind plastic trash, try not to buy it.

REV. WILLIAM J. BYRON, S.J. (1927-2024)

Renowned priest, Jesuit scholar, and academic Rev. William J. Byron, S.J. died on April 9, 2024.

Father Byron was a former pastor of Holy Trinity Church from 2000-2003, as well as a former Trustee of Georgetown University, Georgetown University Hospital, Georgetown Visitation Preparatory School, and a former President of Catholic University, The University of Scranton, Loyola University of New Orleans, and St. Joseph's Preparatory School, among many other positions.

Byron was truly a man for all seasons, serving in the U.S. Army's 508th parachute infantry regiment in 1945-46 before entering the Jesuit order and being ordained a priest. Byron held multiple advanced degrees, authored over 20 books, and wrote a syndicated column for the Catholic News Service.
