Sixth Sunday of Easter

Baptism and Formation in Our Faith

by Brian Flanagan, Coordinator of Adult Faith Formation

Every Sunday during the Easter season, I look forward to the moment in the Mass where we get sprinkled with holy water, reminding us of the baptismal promises that we made or renewed on Easter Sunday. It's hard not to smile a little when you suddenly get a splash of cool water on your face, and I even like it when our pastors and acolytes sometimes seem to enjoy reminding us of our baptism with particular vigor.

The Easter Season is a season of baptism. Historically, Lent began as a period of preparation for those being baptized to prepare to enter the church, and quickly became a period for all of the Christian faithful to prepare themselves, through fasting, prayer, and charity, to renew their baptismal promises to renounce sin and confess belief in God. Now, in the Easter weeks that follow, each week we celebrate that renewal rooted in our own dying and rising with Christ, empowered by the Holy Spirit whose outpouring we commemorate at the end of the Easter season on Pentecost.

Pope Francis spoke often and powerfully about the importance of our baptism. He said that the most important day of his life was not the day that he was ordained a priest or bishop, or the day he was elected pope, but the day he was baptized. He encouraged us to research and celebrate the day of our baptism, and in his encyclical Evangelii Gaudium, he taught that “In all the baptized, from first to last, the sanctifying power of the Spirit is at work, impelling us to evangelization,” and that “in virtue of their baptism, all the members of the People of God have become missionary disciples.”

Our new pope, Leo XIV, made these sentiments his own in his first speech to the College of Cardinals the day after his election, emphasizing “the missionary conversion of the entire Christian community” and “attention to the sensus fidei,” that is, the knowledge of the faith found in all the baptized.

Baptism is also crucial for synodality, and the Final Document of the Synod on Synodality authoritatively teaches that synodality is “the basis of synodality” and that “all Christians participate in the sensus fidei through Baptism.” Synodality and forms of participation of all in the governance and discernment of the church are rooted in our very identity and equal dignity as members of the baptized faithful – and both the Second Vatican Council’s teaching on the Church and the recent Synod on Synodality teach that to understand the church we should start with baptism before distinguishing the various vocations and charisms by which we live out that baptism.

Our Adult Faith Formation programs in this Easter season, many of which are available on our parish YouTube channel if you missed them, have focused on baptism. Dr. John Borelli, a parishioner and theologian, spoke about the baptism we share across the divisions within Christianity and the ecumenical movement working to re-unite the one church of Christ. Earlier this month we welcomed Dr. Christiana Zenner of Fordham University to talk about the place of water in Catholic social teaching, and the importance of ensuring fresh water for all those who need it in our creation. And last weekend our Pastoral Associate for Liturgy, Tony Varas, helped us think about the liturgy of baptism and how it can help us understand the sacrament as the gateway to fuller relationship with God and with the entire community we call the church.

More broadly, I’d like to think that all our Adult Faith Formation programming throughout the year has been about baptism, in two senses. First, learning more about our faith is the right – and the responsibility! – of all the baptized, not just those in a certain age group or preparing for a particular sacrament. If we are going to be the church of missionary disciples that Pope Francis and Pope Leo XIV are calling for, all of us are called to keep growing in our faith, and growing in our experience and knowledge of God. And secondly, if you’ve been to an adult faith formation program this year, I hope that you’ve experienced it as an opportunity for shared learning, conversation, and reflection, in which our speakers help us all to explore our faith rather than tell us what we should or shouldn’t believe. We hope to root our faith formation in the truth that “all Christians participate in the sensus fidei through Baptism,” and that we all have something to learn, and yet also have something to teach – through our words, through our experiences, through our lives of faith.

Though we will begin to slow down our programming during the summer, I hope that you’ll join us for one of our adult faith formation opportunities, whether in person or on Zoom. You can find out more about them, see some of our past programs, and sign up for a weekly eletter at trinity.org/adult-faith-formation.

MIGRANT FAMILIA UPDATE

It has been a challenging five months for our migrant community so far in 2025. Thanks to the commitment of our Migrant Familia mentors and volunteers, we have worked tirelessly to ensure that our familia members have the legal representation that they need.

Since January, we have also hosted eight workshops/events providing a safe community to learn and grow. We also started a program focused on the youngest members of our familia ensuring they have the support they need to thrive. The gifts of time, talent and treasure of our parish community are unmatched and allows us to adapt and grow in meaningful ways for our familia members.

So far this year we have welcomed two families and one individual bringing our total familia members to 30 families/individuals from 14 countries. At the end of May we will say goodbye to one family who opted to self deport (it only took them 8 weeks!). We ask that you continue to keep all of our familia members, current and "graduated" in your prayers. They often reference how being connected to the Holy Trinity community has changed their lives for the better.

Current needs:

- Clothing size 7/8 for a little boy
- Furniture: dresser; kitchen table with 6 chairs
- Transportation Team volunteers

To learn more about volunteer opportunities this summer, please e-mail migrantteam@trinity.org.
