October 11, 2026

Twenty-eighth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Know Nothings – Briefly – Take Over Washington

by Todd Kushner, Holy Trinity History Team

The groundbreaking for Holy Trinity's new church building in 1846 was an occasion of great joy. Thousands of Catholic immigrants from Germany and Ireland had moved to the Washington area, and the size of the parish had swelled as a result. However, nativists — people who sought to preserve the power of native-born Protestants, stop immigration, and purge Catholics from public life — were also on the rise in Washington. It was an era of anxiety.

Anti-immigrant sentiment had begun to surge as early as 1832, when local Washington officials blamed Irish and German Catholic immigrants for a deadly cholera epidemic. Just two years later, anti-immigrant attitudes were reinforced when President Jackson cited “armed rioting” as the justification to send federal troops to quell a strike by Irish work crews along the C&O Canal.

Another anti-immigration development of the 1830s was the emergence of the xenophobic Washington Native American Association, which emerged in 1837 “to save our institutions from the corruption of foreign countries and ourselves from the loss of our birthrights.” The association touted increasingly crude anti-immigrant stereotypes and anti-Catholic rhetoric.

Replacement for the Papal stone destroyed by the Know-Nothings

Although the association received extensive public attention, it disbanded within a few years due to a lack of support. Nativism in Washington did not go away, however; it just went underground in the form of the Know Nothing society. This group was a fraternal order complete with secret handshakes, signals, passwords, and elaborate superpatriotic initiation rituals and an anti-catholic, anti-slavery, anti-immigrant, and anti-liquor agenda. Officially known as the Order of the Star Spangled Banner or the American Party, members claimed to “know nothing” about the order when asked, thus, giving the group its colloquial name. They organized covertly and sought to infiltrate existing political structures.

In March 1854, vandals believed to be Know Nothing members broke into the Washington Monument building site and demolished a commemorative stone donated by Pope Pius IX.

In June of the same year, Washingtonians found that they had unwittingly elected Know Nothing member John T. Towers as mayor and his fellow Know Nothing members to the majority in both chambers of the city council. The society had worked surreptitiously for over a year to this end, hiding both its own existence and the affiliation of its candidates. Washington was, thus, the first city to elect a Know Nothing mayor and municipal government.

According to historian Jennifer Altenhofel, "Know Nothingism in the capital virtually destroyed opportunities for Irish [and by extension other Catholic] men and consigned them to a back seat role in the public sphere of Washington society and politics." Many Catholic men, including Holy Trinity parishioners of higher social status, lost government contracts and were excluded or purged from government positions.

Eventually, the Washington Know Nothings prevailed on their compatriots in Congress to pass legislation limiting immigrant voting rights in Washington DC. They took to local newspapers, railing against immigration, the foreign-born, Catholics, and alcohol.

However, the Know Nothing municipal coup faced significant opposition from the beginning. Opponents countered by pointing to the Constitution and Declaration of Independence (which attacked George III for discouraging immigration), while noting that Lafayette and other Catholics had served America nobly. These opponents soon joined forces to form the Anti-Know Nothing Party, and as a result, Washington became the first city to repudiate a Know Nothing government. The Know Nothings lost municipal control in 1856.

There was one final skirmish in the following year, when the Know Nothings attempted a comeback by deploying gangs of Baltimore thugs armed with guns, knives, clubs, and cannon to disrupt municipal elections. This, however, failed when the gangs were dispersed in a bloody clash with US Marines dispatched by President Buchanan.

The Know Nothings never again took control of local power in Washington. The long-held tradition of religious ecumenism and tolerance in our nation's capital prevailed.

YOUNG ADULT COMMUNITY FALL RETREAT

Saturday, October 24 | 9:30 AM - 5:00 PM, Franciscan Monastery, Washington, DC

Registration deadline: October 16

Our faith teaches that our loving God has been creating us from our first moments of life, but it can be easy to overlook the action of the divine in the everyday. Through this day away at the Franciscan Monastery in Washington, DC, young adults will explore how God has been with us in our journey so far and where God is meeting us in our lives now. Periods of sharing and reflection will be grounded in the spirituality of St. Ignatius Loyola. For more information and to register, please visit trinity.org/yac-retreat. Contact hospitality minister Connor Bliss at yacs+retreat@trinity.org with questions.

PARISH DIALOGUE ON MENTAL HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Saturday, October 17 | 3:00 PM, McKenna

All adult parishioners are invited to join fellow Holy Trinity parishioners and staff for an in-person dialogue on Mental Health and Wellness. The gathering will be an opportunity to engage in a facilitated process to listen to one another's experience of helps and challenges to mental health and wellness.

The gathering will begin at 3:00 PM (light refreshments will be available), and will conclude by 5:00 PM. After the dialogue, participants may want to attend the 5:30 PM vigil Mass in the Church to pray together. Please register in advance for planning purposes by scanning the QR code at right, or contact Ian Mitchell, imitchell@trinity.org.

This gathering is especially timely as Pope Leo XIV is this month inviting the world to join him in his prayer for mental health ministry, "that we may learn to welcome and integrate care for mental health into the life and ministry of our communities and of the whole Church." The U.S. Catholic Bishops (USCCB) have designated October 11th as Mental Health Sunday (2nd national observance). The bishops have also developed an annual Novena for Mental Health, which Catholics across the country will be praying together from October 10 to 18. Please visit USCCB's National Catholic Mental Health Campaign at usccb.org/mental-health to learn more.

You are invited to join our grief support groups for a time of prayer, reflection, sharing, and compassionate support. Additionally, please join us on Monday, November 2 between 6:00 - 6:45 PM for fellowship in McKenna Hall prior to the All Souls Prayer Service. The Teach-In is a place for members of the Ignatian family (Jesuit institutions and larger Catholic Church) to be empowered, re-energized, inspired, challenged, and supported by a community that sees faith and justice integrally linked. Light refreshments will be available. Please register in advance. Questions can be directed to Ian Mitchell, Coordinator of Adult Faith Formation, at imitchell@trinity.org.

2027 IMMERSION EXPERIENCES

The Social Justice Ministry works to provide opportunities for parishioners to be in proximity of marginalized communities locally and outside of the DMV. We believe that proximity "bridges the gap between abstract data and real-world impact, replacing passive "awareness" with empathetic, informed, and transformative action." It challenges "othering" and provides an opportunity to listen to the people directly impacted by injustice. Contact Ashley Klick (aklick@trinity.org) with questions or for more information.

Immersion Experience in Alabama with Catholic Mobilizing Network (Jan 7-10, 2027) Plans are underway for our 4th pilgrimage to Montgomery and Selma. Registration is open until November 1.

Family Experience in El Salvador with Building Futures (August 2027) A group of families from Holy Trinity will travel to San Salvador, El Salvador with the Building Futures Project for a week-long hand-on service and cultural immersion experience. The trip is limited to 10-20 individuals and is organized for families to do together. The trip dates are August 14-21, 2027. The cost is $1,200 per person plus the cost of booking a flight.
